

Susan Singer Sky Blue

7

Susan Singer fell in love with blue when she went to Iceland in 2015 on a stopover from Europe. The color of the sky was the clearest blue she had ever seen, with white clouds wafting or swirling blowing through in an ever-changing array of beauty. Since that time, she has been painting landscapes in pastel to capture for herself and others the heart-opening feeling of sublime peace she felt in Iceland.

Returning to Richmond after her trips, she began drawing the James River in order to find acceptance of the fact that she was no longer in Iceland. She finds a different, but also stunning, beauty here in Virginia and has (at least temporarily) accepted that she's here for now.

Susan Singer - "Sky Blue"

Pastel paintings

- | | | |
|------------------------------------|---------|--------|
| 1. Autumn Reflections, James River | 40 x 29 | $1500 |
| 2. Passing By | 29 x 23 | $850 |
| 3. Sunset in Akureyri | 23 x 29 | $850 |

